Modernism and the War

May Sinclair's Novel Shows the New Generation Transfigured by Battle

THE TREE OF HEAVEN—By May Sinclair. (The Macmillan Company.) $1.60.

THE Tree of Heaven stands out at once and emphatically from the common run of books because it is a work of art. By that is meant not something merely superior to the average novel—that depends upon our standard of superiority—but something radically different; and the difference is a difference in kind, not a difference in degree. It may be shortly stated by saying that Miss Sinclair is here concerned only and wholly and devotedly to tell the truth, to express as potently and precisely as by any means may be expressed a certain thing which she believes. The story turns upon the war, but she is not trying to be timely; it contains many characters deeply studied and skilfully drawn, but she is not exhibiting portraiture; it is interesting and well written and full of meaning, but she cares nothing to point a moral or adorn a tale. All these are means to her end, which is to tell the truth that is in her. And to that she devotes herself to the exclusion of every other consideration. She does not consider whether it will be pleasant or popular or profitable or praised; she simply agonizes to say perfectly what she has to say. That is art, and there is never very much of it in the world at any one time, nor very many artists.

MAY SINCLAIR

The idea which she has to convey i[illegible] modern English generation gro[illegible] and effete and its redempti[illegible] Great War. She does [illegible] and seek to prove it[illegible] to argue, to mak[illegible] means in effect[illegible] it and shows [illegible] or by the s[illegible] caught up [illegible] of self or [illegible] art; and [illegible] littleness [illegible] cretely, t[illegible] family o[illegible] sponds [illegible] this side [illegible] ces, Flem[illegible] to the wo[illegible] trate aun[illegible] story, and [illegible] the eldest [illegible] enough a p[illegible] ment and th[illegible] is dedicated [illegible] of sheer chiv[illegible] sleek little free [illegible] Veronica, with t[illegible] from her unlawful [illegible] seriously goes wrong, [illegible] human of them all. Th[illegible] are the people; and the tale [illegible] figures them.

The manner of the telling is reali[illegible] ism very English and very modern and [illegible] nine. As an English novel, one would rath[illegible] expect it to set characters first, to keep the people and their natures and their development in the foreground, holding the action and the plot subordinate. And this is so. Yet the story is never for a moment inactive or uninteresting. The characters indeed come first; but they dissect and disco[illegible] that Michael pe[illegible] because the author dared not leave him alive in his regenerated state. Certain virtuous persons also have been shocked by Miss Sinclair's plain speaking, by her uncompromising concreteness and definition regarding matters of sex and sense. But this matter is always a question of taste and tone, and the objection is here a mere stupidity, a failure to see beyond the letter of a phrase into the spirit of its use. Miss Sinclair says what she means in whatever words are most exact; but her meaning is never in the remotest degree prurient or perverse. The book is absolutely clean throughout; usually with the wholesome purity of a well kept home, and when that will not do, then with the surgical cleanness of an operating room. There is ugliness and evil and pathology now and again, each in measure and in its place. There is no taint or infection anywhere.

But from another point of view, all this is part of the passionate honesty of the book. And that, in any case, is its outstanding quality and its outstanding merit. It is refreshing, after the crude and slovenly bulk of current fiction, to come upon work like this where every character, every detail, is drawn in with the same precise and anxious and impartial care. Miss Sinclair has flinched from nothing, not even from wasted labor. She expends upon the trifle which only one reader in a hundred will see just the same wanton nicety of touch that she [illegible] upon her big scenes and her opportunities for [illegible]peal. None the less she remains careful [illegible] There is no blurring of the larger [illegible] the forest among the leaves. [illegible]hich seen under the micro- [illegible]come a picture. She [illegible]iasms. When em- [illegible]her a short cry of [illegible] teeth and turn [illegible]nting out the [illegible] of it. She [illegible]ful picture

What [illegible], and what she puts [illegible]s craftsmanship will [illegible]rk of genius in the book. [illegible] that magic which we feel [illegible]rk of few artists whom one [illegible] it is in no sense great; there is [illegible] it, no speaking with tongues, no [illegible]perhuman beauty. Put as a work of [illegible]rtistry, well worth the doing and done at the [illegible]ll strength and compass of skilled workmanship, it ranks fairly among the best work of its kind in modern fiction among the very best.

THE NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE

THE progress of any such radical change in trade routine as the proposed co-operative clearing house for trade orders and deliveries in New York City is inevitably attended with many difficulties, not the least of which is the re-adjustment of existing agencies now engaged in performing a portion of the function to be taken over by the new agency. The question naturally arises: What will become of the jobber? It seems hard to believe that the jobber would not be adversely affected, especially were the operations of the clearing house eventually extended to dealers outside of New York, as seems not at all unlikely. The proponents of the new plan assert, however, that not only would those now using the jobbers continue to do so under the new plan, meanwhile utilizing the clearing house for orders which they find it to their advantage, for obvious reasons, to place directly with the publishers, but that the service of the clearing house would prove a decided saving to the jobbers, since a house like Baker & Taylor now has to employ no less than eleven list boys and four wagons. It is of interest in this connection to note that the head of one of the largest jobbing houses in the country, located in New York, has expressed his approval and willingness to co-operate with the new plan —"if it can be worked."

Should the system extend beyond New York City the three or four houses now engaged in part in forwarding enclosures would doubtless be affected, tho to most of the trade the burden of handling enclosures is far more than the possible returns.

On the other hand the advantages of such a system as that now in successful and profitable operation in Holland, described elsewhere in this issue, are almost too obvious to need mention. Some of the many possibilities for substantial savings to the bookseller are outlined elsewhere. For the publisher the clearing house would be equally advantageous. To most of the latter, particularly those who do not carry a considerable stock at their offices, the trade delivery problem is, under present conditions, a source of worry and complaint. The clearing house would, it is claimed, cut publishers' present delivery costs in half, while the whole problem of deliveries would be put on a systematic, almost automatic, basis. In addition, the saving in time and confusion under the new plan thru the receipt of all orders at a definite hour each day, thus making possible their more efficient sorting and handling, would doubtless be considerable.

The suggested clearing house is not only in line with the Government's recent appeal to retailers to co-operate in cutting down delivery costs, but also reflects the enterprising and advanced business methods that have assured the success of the Bush Terminal enterprises in Brooklyn and New York which have enabled manufacturers and now propose to enable wholesale buyers to combine under one roof to effect economies in certain operations common to all. So far the plan for the book-trade clearing house has been sponsored entirely by the booksellers. Both the Booksellers' League and the Booksellers of the City of New York have endorsed the proposal and an active committee has been appointed by the latter to outline the plan in detail and to sound out the publishers, whose co-operation is of course essential to the most effective working of the scheme. Should such a modest trade co-operative agency once be definitely established with both parties to the making and marketing of books sharing fully and equally in the expense and profit, not only would further trade economies be apt to follow, but the single room now necessary for the work of the Order and Bundle Clearing House might in time grow to an imposing House of the Book, similar to those in the great publishing centers of certain European countries, where the educational, recreational and co-operative service activities of the trade would find a permanent and suitable home.

THERE are of course other ways of choking a cat than cutting off its head. The liberality of Mitchell Kennerley's offer in an advertisement to the trade elsewhere in this issue will probably leave even the Bolsheviki among the booksellers gasping, while publishers will doubtless regard it, even for an advertising stunt, as "a bit stiff." Mr. Kennerley offers to send copies of a new book to all booksellers interested, with the understanding that at the end of thirty days he is to be credited with any copies sold and unsold copies are to be "given away." "If a bookseller cannot sell a book," Mr. Kennerley assumes, "it isn't worth the cost of carriage back to the publisher." It would be interesting to know the trade's response to this plan.

THE PROPOSED NEW YORK RETAIL CLEARING HOUSE

THE retail book-trade of New York City is investigating in some detail the feasibility of inaugurating the central book exchange, rumors of which have been current in the trade for some time. The war has only accentuated certain longstanding evils—such as the waste and uncertainty of a corps of increasingly expensive list boys scurrying back and forth over the city all day—which, it is claimed, the central clearing house would go far towards obviating.

THE DUTCH PLAN

The remedy proposed is modeled closely on the system in successful operation in Holland where the "Dutch Association for the Advancement of the Book-trade" established in 1870 the Bestelhuis van den Boekhandel, or central clearing house and forwarding agency. According to a report on the Amsterdam system made by Mr. E. Eisele of Brentano's in 1912 at the request of the American Booksellers' Association* and based on the report by K. Groesbeek before the International Publishers' Congress in Amsterdam, the Dutch Booksellers' Association appointed a committee in 1868 to devise some more economical ordering system. The committee promptly advised a centralization of all deliveries under one roof with a manager responsible to a commission selected by the Booksellers' Association. The clearing house was founded in 1870 by a company with a capital of $12,500, divided into 125 shares of $100 each. The company was to run for thirty years, and provided that every share could be retired at will at the rate of $120 each. In other words, after thirty years of service, the clearing house was to become absolutely the property of the association. A 4 per cent. interest guarantee was given to the shareholders in the interim After a few years of preliminary arrangements, a delay necessitated by the antagonism created by a few firms, who had made a business of representing the various retail dealers, the Clearing House actually started work on the 1st of January, 1874.

In the forty years since the House was established, the original capital has been entirely retired; a mortgage of $12,000 has been paid and an indemnity of $4,800 paid to the houses who gave up their commission business. There has also been established an adequate pension and sickness fund for the employees of the house. From 52 firms which used the Clearing House in 1874, the number has gone up to 1696 firms that use it now. The tremendous amount of 6,078,897 kilograms (7000 tons) of merchandise was handled in a recent typical year, of which 25 per cent went to firms in Amsterdam and 75 to firms outside. The expense connected with the handling of these goods was 29,202 gulden (about $12,000); for salaries about $3,200; for packing material about $3,200. The income from the shipments made, and which has been borne by the 1,700 firms, has been nearly 50,000 gulden, or $20,000.

The shipments are handled by one manager, three clerks, and twenty-eight packers. The system is working to such perfection now that there is no check whatever necessary or made outside of the weighing of the packages. The average shipment is one thousand packages of the weight of about 20,000 kilograms (20 tons) a day.

The tariff for the clearing house is very simple and exceedingly low. The members of the Association for the Advancement of the Book-trade pay the following charges for every shipment: An initial charge for each shipment, whether small or large, 7c in Dutch money, which is $.028 in American money. Besides, there is charged the following rate for the total weight of the shipments, counted in kilograms, during the year:

(Dutch money; for American equivalent divide by 2½)

1 to 1,000	kilograms	.. 15	cts.	per	10	kilograms.
1,001 to 4,000	"	.. 75	"		100	"
4,001 to 10,000	"	.. 50	"		100	"
10,001 to 20,000	"	.. 35	"		100	"
20,001 to 30,000	"	.. 25	"		100	"
30,001 to 50,000	"	.. 20	"		100	"
50,001 and more	"	.. 16½	"		100	"

This by long experience, has been found the most just remuneration for the services.

Amsterdam members of the association get a reduction of 50% on these prices, as their packages are delivered to them open without being repacked or shipped in cases. Dealers who are not members of the association pay an extra 10 per cent on these prices.

All the shipments have to bear the address of the final addressee, and have to be delivered free to the Clearing House, which sees that all the packages for the same addressee are packed together, without, however, any verification of the contents of each individual package. A small fee is demanded for registry of valuable packages, for which a special receipt is given.

THE GERMAN PLAN

A plan somewhat similar to this is followed in Germany where all orders are sent, thru the bookseller's agent, or kommissionär, to the Bestellanstalt, or order exchange, at Leipzig where they are sorted and delivered to the various publishers' agents. The German plan is thus an order clearing house while the Dutch system, which is recommended as ideally suited to New York, assembles and distributes daily both the orders and the books themselves.

PRESENT CONDITIONS IN NEW YORK

It is estimated that at the present time nearly a hundred list boys are trailing each other about New York City daily, crossing and recrossing each other's path many times. Brentano's, to cite but a single case, employ five boys at approximately $700 each, including salary and car fare; with the exception of the little time spent after five o'clock in dusting stock and other miscellaneous work, all of these boys devote their entire time to picking up orders about the city. $60,000 is said to be a by no means exaggerated estimate of the total local expenditure for list boys and it is claimed that at least $25,000 of this might be saved thru the proposed central clearing house. Aside from the increasing expense of list boys the problem of getting them at any price is becoming more and more difficult. The tricks and wiles of the shiftless boy are a constant problem, while even the more diligent boys are subject to constant and unavoidable waits in publishers' city trade rooms.

To avoid or cut down leaks under the present system some dealers have endeavored to concentrate their orders in the hands of one of the jobbing houses. An important objection raised to this plan is that the bookseller does not get the advantage he might reap from the cumulative value of his sales were they made direct from the publisher. The majority of booksellers, however, now use the jobber for certain classes of orders and also employ list-boys for ordering such stock as they find it advantageous to get directly from the publishers. As it is stated that the aim of the clearing house is not to supplant the jobber it is argued that the same balance between the jobber and direct trade would probably be maintained. Another class of booksellers have endeavored to avoid the high cost of list-boys by telephoning their orders to publishers. The objection to this plan, aside from the irregular facilities for delivery employed by most publishers, lies in the fact that it places all the burden of the delivery upon the publisher.

THE PLAN PROPOSED

Under the plan proposed the bookseller would mail his orders the night before or send them by messenger after opening his morning mail, each title probably on a separate standardized slip. The lists would close at the clearing house by 9:30 at latest and orders would be sorted according to publisher by 9:45 when messengers arrived from each publisher—in certain cases as the 45th street, upper Fifth Avenue, and Fourth Avenue groups, two or more publishers might cooperate in sending one messenger. Upon arrival at the publisher's stock-room, orders for each title would be sorted and handled en bloc, thus obviating the waste and delay of traversing distant parts of the stock room or even different floors for each order. By 11:30 or 12 o'clock books for all dealers from all publishers would be back at the clearing house and deliveries would begin immediately. The same general plan would be followed for the afternoon orders.

WHAT IT WOULD COST

The cost of operating the service on an ample scale in New York is estimated at in the neighborhood of $15,000 a year. It has been suggested that a guarantee fund similar to that used in starting the Dutch exchange cited above should be created, a fund of 100 shares at $100 each to be subscribed by booksellers and publishers alike and perhaps to be retired in time as in the case of the Dutch trade. Two methods of payment have been suggested: the German system which groups firms acording to their gross yearly business, thus striking a rough average of service rendered; and the Dutch plan of weighing parcels as they come from publishers and as they go to booksellers and charging a standard fee per pound or hundred pounds. The latter has been recommended as the more feasible for New York. Of immediate interest to publishers is the claim that the clearing house would cut their delivery costs in half.

While the New York exchange has as its immediate object the easing of the delivery problems between New York publishers and booksellers, its possibilities extend in reality far beyond the local field. Not only would out-of-town publishers be able to affect savings in handling and carriage thru shipping all New York City orders in one package in care of the exchange, but the advantages of the clearing house might be extended, as in Holland, to booksellers in other sections of the country; as stated above, only about one-quarter of the business done thru the Bestelhuis in Amsterdam goes to the local trade, the remaining three-quarters going to firms outside that city. Out-of-town dealers could—to cite but one instance—use the clearing house for inclosures instead of imposing upon the good nature of some friend as is frequently the practice at present.

The proposal for a clearing house has been endorsed by both the Booksellers' League and the Booksellers of the City of New York, as recorded in the PUBLSHERS' WEEKLY for last week. The committee appointed by the latter organization during the past week to investigate and report further on the plan includes A. Hafner, of G. E. Stechert & Co., H. Giersberg, of G. P. Putnam's Sons, and E. Eisele, of Brentano's. This committee is already actively at work.

BUSINESS BOOKS

Mr. Melcher's Report to the American Booksellers' Association

AT the last convention of the American Booksellers' Association, Frederic G. Melcher was appointed to investigate the possibilities for increased sales of business books thru bookstores. Following is Mr. Melchcer's report:

SERVING BUSINESS MEN IN A BOOKSTORE

The American Booksellers' Association is asking of its members and of all retail booksellers that they make this season a time of special emphasis on selling books to business men.

The Reason. No. 1. Because there is nothing that the bookseller can do at this National crisis that will make his store more vital to the Community's interests. No. 2. Because many other lines of books are to be less demanded this year, and our selling efficiency should be immediately thrown into new channels. No. 3. Because it will prove profitable, there being a fine variety of books available at a good margin of profit. No. 4. Because many lines of special books have escaped from the channels of retail selling, because the retail bookseller has not covered the market, and we want to show ourselves capable of being a complete outlet in our Community. No. 5. Because there has been so much said in magazines, in Public Libary Conventions and various mediums about books for business men and the literature of the subject is now so complete and really valuable that the time is absolutely ripe for making effective campaign.

HOW TO GO ABOUT IT

First. Get Behind It. Sell yourself the idea. Re-read the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of July 14th with the editorial and article by Mr. Lynd. Look into the books yourself to realize how valuable they can be to a business man.

Call a meeting of every salesman and sell them the idea. Get them to read the abovementioned article and to take home and read some of the best books from your stock.

Second. The Stock. Check up your stock of business books and order in enough to make a good showing, covering in some way the various classes of business books that you will be called upon for. Use for checking one of the bibliographies mentioned below. Order small quantities until you know what you can sell, but on a few titles start with sufficient quantity so that a few different piles will be there to push the general customer: such books as "Getting the Most Out of Business" by Lewis, "How to Advertise" by French, "Effective Business Letters" by Gardner, "Retail Selling and Store Management" by Nystrom, and "Increasing Human Efficiency in Business" by Scott.

Third. Display. If possible, allot counter for this display and keep it fixed at that point for the winter. Put in an occasional window. Have good display cards for both. If you cannot spare a counter, use some shelving that will not cause the books to be lost in the general expanse.

Fourth. Information. Have on hand good book lists for business men. Put handy for reference "1600 Business Book, Arranged by Authors, by Titles, and by Subjects" H. W. Wilson Company, 1917—$1.50. "The Working Library," a list of 200 books published by the Educational Committee, the Advertising Club of New York. "The Business Men's Library," a pamphlet printed by the Brooklyn Public Library, 1917. "Business Books of To-Day," Cleveland Public Library. These lists will help a salesman make suggestions for books not represented on your shelves. Have at hand catalogs of business books such as have been issued by Appleton, Ronald Press, A. W. Shaw Company and others.

Fifth. Advertising. Publicity on these books will pay as it will attract a new line of customers to the store. Use a little newspaper space. Send out circulars judiciously. Make up your own selling letters. Follow-up those who have bought one book with other suggestions. Do it systematically.

Sixth. Develop Outside Selling. First by using morning time of some salesman from the floor, or later by developing a special man in this field. Publishers of such books are keeping many men busy in moderate sized cities selling nothing else but business books. It would be better to select some special book or few books to concentrate on for this work, or to pick from the new books as they come along such as appeal to your interest. Build up a card index of business men and live offices for post card notification. Public libraries are using this method with great success.

Seventh. Keeping It Up. Let us make up our mind to carry such a campaign along with sufficient force and backing and over sufficient number of months so that its value can be fully tested out. It will mean profit, it will mean prestige, it will mean a new line of customers, it will mean a co-operative effort among bookstores fully to fulfill the functions of our trade.

COMMENTS

The chairman of this Committee would like to make a few comments on the above program. The Committee is quite conscious that many of the booksellers whom this will reach are doing as much as the above and more. We only hope that their example, which has been quoted more widely than they know by traveling men and customers, will be an incentive to the others. We do wish that all members will really make an effort to make this a joint program by the booksellers so that we may test out the value of our co-operative efforts.

There are many lines of books not sold in the bookstore that should be sold there, but we cannot round out our efforts better than by making specific effort on this promising field. The booksellers will find that the publishers of business books will be most helpful in their suggestions. Such firms as the Ronald Press, Appleton, A. W. Shaw, Houghton Mifflin, Lippincott, and many others that could be mentioned will furnish helpful selling talks, samples of circular letters, display cards, etc.

The publisher is ready to meet the retailer more than half way. The Committee would suggest that the dealer does not at first stock in books that cannot be sold at fully one-third discount. This will not be difficult to accomplish at present. Of the "Business Men's Library" of the Brooklyn Public Library list for instance, 100 out of 168 volumes mentioned can be had at a retail discount. Pick the ones that have a profit, and boost those.

Some publishers have a tendency to put good business books on their educational discount. These can be avoided as there are equally good books that can be sold at a profit. As the publisher realizes that the bookseller is a big outlet for his product, he will be more and more likely to put the best new items on a retail basis. He cannot be expected to take us so much into consideration when we are but a fractional outlet for him.

The Committee hope that this effort on selling business books of a general character may lead to further developments in selling Technical books. This business should really belong to the retail bookstore, but at present over 90 per cent of such books are sold direct. The best bibliographies of Technical books which would enable the retailer to carry the best books in this field are the lists issued yearly by the Pratt Institute Free Library, Brooklyn. Dealers would do well to keep a file of these for reference.

To show how far this line has escaped from the retailer, we would call attention to the fact that only eleven out of 100 listed by Pratt Institute in 1915 could be bought by the retailer at a living margin. When we have a real outlet for such books, we can go to the publishers with a strong argument for recognition, but at present most of them do not care a rap for our trade, and will be frank to tell us so.

Please give this report consideration and keep this in front of you. Keep it on your desk to remind you that we are trying to make a joint effort for the profit and prestige of the retail trade.

FRENCH CATALOGS FOR AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS

THE first number of the Bulletin Bibliographique of the Société d'Exportation des Editions Françaises, the group of some thirty leading French publishers whose official representative, Mlle. Marguérite Clement, is now in this country, is now ready for American booksellers, together with the Société's first "trade list annual" for American dealers.

The Bulletin consists of an attractively covered thirty-one page annotated and classified list of books published in France during the six months, January to June, 1917, and is intended for distrbution by booksellers to their customers. A special trade edition of the Bulletin contains in addition detachable order blanks for the convenience of the bookseller.

The catalog of 99 pages arranged somewhat on the plan of the "Trade List Annual" lists by publisher the principal works of leading French firms. A note on the cover points out that price increases have taken place in some cases since the catalog was begun. Copies of both the Bulletin and of the larger catalog may be had from the offices of the Société, 13, rue de Tournon, Paris, or, in limited quantities, thru Brentano's, New York (the shipment of catalogs to be distributed thru Brentano's has not yet reached this country).

The work of the Société in this country during the past few months is indicated by the list of some eighty-two firms in this country, Canada, and Alaska thru whom the publications of its members may be obtained.

BEST SHORT STORIES OF 1917

EDWARD J. O'BRIEN has just published in the Boston Transcript his selection of the best short stories of 1917. Mr. O'Brien denies the claim of Mary M. Colum that the American short story is dreary, dull and on the wane: "I deny that the American short story is at a low ebb, and I offer the present review as a revelation of the best that is now being done in this field. I agree with Mrs. Colum that the best stories are only to be found after a laborious, dusty search, but this is the proof rather than the refutation of my position."

An interesting comment on general tendencies is also worth quoting: "I do not know whether it is an effect of the war or not, but during 1917, even more than during 1916, American magazines have been almost absolutely devoid of humor. Save for Irvin S. Cobb, on whom the mantle of Mark Twain has surely fallen, and for Seumas O'Brien, whom Mr. Dooley must envy, I have found American fiction to be sufficiently solemn and imperturbable."

According to Mr. O'Brien Wilbur Daniel Steele and Katharine Fullerton Gerould are still leaders in the field of the short story. Others of especial promise are Maxwell Struthers Burt and Charles Caldwell Dobie, while Sherwood Anderson and Waldo Frank are singled out as writers of importance tho not yet masters of form. The three new short story writers of the year who show greatest promise are Gertrude Nafe and Thomas Beer, whose first stories appeared in the Century magazine during 1917, and Elizabeth Stead Taber whose "The Scar" attracted attention in the Seven Arts.

In redefining his critical standards Mr. O'Brien says, "I am not at all interested in formulæ, and organized criticism at its best would be nothing more than dead criticism. What has interested me, to the exclusion of other things, is the fresh, living current of life which flows thru the best of our work, and the psychological and imaginative reality that our writers have conferred upon it. The following "Roll of Honor" lists all short stories of 1917 by American authors which, in Mr. O'Brien's opinion, have gained three stars, with the exception of reprints. One star before the title of a story indicates his personal belief in its special excellence. 19.	Sunset Magazine	6	19

In comparison to last year's figures it is interesting to note that Harper's is still in the lead for its number of distinctive stories, and the Saturday Evening Post again follows. Scribner's has risen from fourth to third place, however, displaying Century and Collier's which tied for that position last year. Collier's now takes fourth place and Century fifth in the position held by the American in 1916. The sixth place goes to the Bellman instead of Every Week. In the question of percenetage, instead of last year's figures, Scribner 80%, Century 76% and Harper 68%, all three magazines are neck and neck at 80% which shows an interesting equality for the year 1917.

WOMEN'S NATIONAL BOOK ASSOCIATION HOLDS FIRST DINNER

ONE HUNDRED and twenty-five members and guests of the Women's National Book Association met at Fass' restaurant, in New York, on January 29, for the first dinner of the association. Mrs. Pauline C. Sherwood, of the Sherwood Co., president of the new association, presided. The guests of honor were Honoré Willsie, author of "Lydia of the Pines" and editor of the Delineator; Edna Ferber, author of "Fanny Herself" and the Emma McChesney stories, and Marjorie Benton Cooke, author of "Cinderella Jane" and "Bambi."

Mrs. Willsie spoke of her efforts to spread American ideals thru the Delineator. Edna Ferber, in a very informal talk, told of her admiration for the business woman and of her joy in writing about her. Miss Cooke, in a light vein with an undercurrent of seriousness, discussed the ideals or rather the lack of them among the "poor little rich" children.

Following the guests of honor Miss Jennison of the Sunwise Turn, Miss Belle Morris of Koch's Book Department, Miss A. Jacobs of Greenhut's, Miss Martha Kramer of Thomas Nelson & Sons, Mrs. Louise M. Pleasanton of Brentano's Children's Book Department, and other women of the trade spoke briefly on different phases of their work and the aims of the association. One of the surprises of the evening was the receipt of several hundred red and white carnations from the New York Booksellers' League, with a letter extending best wishes and hearty co-operation.

The majority of those present were women booksellers of the city, but the publishing houses were also well represented. Considering the newness of the Women's National Book Association—it was not organized until November 13 of last year—the unexpectedly large gathering, the enthusiasm and the good fellowship displayed thruout the evening augur well for the success of the organization.

The Board of Managers of the association will meet at the Martha Washington Hotel at 7 p. m. on February 7 to plan the next dinner. Late in the spring "mere men" are to be allowed to invade the chaste precincts of the association at a special open dinner.

THE HOME SCHOOL FOR BOOKSELLERS

Conducted by Miss Bessie Graham of the Philadelphia Booksellers' School

[The Editor of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has felt that it is only just—and for the best interests of the course—that Miss Graham be given entire freedom of comment in these lessons; it should consequently be borne in mind that judgments recorded herein are not necessarily those of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, tho we are making every effort to second Miss Graham's earnest efforts to verify and re-verify all statements. These lessons are copyrighted.]

Correction on Lesson III

The following correction was received from Miss Graham too late for inclusion with Lesson III on Dictionaries: "Please delete the word 'excellence' from the line following the list of five American dictionaries 'in order of their seniority and excellence.' It has just been called to my attention that the 'Worcester' has not been revised in 25 years and I do not in consequence think it wise to put it ahead of the 'Standard.'"

It was also stated, in Lesson II, that William Stanley Braithwaite is Literary Editor of the Boston Transcript. Edwin F. Edgett holds this post. Mr. Braithwaite is a frequent contributor to the Transcript.—EDITOR, PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

LESSON IV

Seven Young English Novelists

"The most influential books, and the truest in their influence, are works of fiction."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

"If my young friend be straitened in leisure and opportunity, I would counsel him to leave to more fortunate persons the literature that limits itself by fact, and make the best of his time by going straight to the world's great fiction."—Richard G. Moulton in "Four Years of Novel Reading" (Heath).

THERE is a group of young British novelists whose books are in constant demand to-day. Since they issue books so frequently and so simultaneously, it is sometimes difficult to keep the works of these seven men properly assorted. Authors and titles get strangely jumbled.

In the Yale Review for October, 1917, this group of men has been called "the Young British Pleiade"—a name for a group of seven illustrious persons, a literary cluster like the seven stars of the Pleiades. The same author, feeling that the members of the group are so much alike in style, has spoken of them as the Seven Peas in One Pod; and again, because they are in apparent league together against existing institutions, as the Young Syndicate.

According to another critic the works of these very different writers have only to be brought together in order to be kept apart.

BERESFORD, JOHN DAVIS. 1873—(Architect)

"The Early History of Jacob Stahl," "A Candidate For Truth," "The Invisible Event," (The Jacob Stahl Trilogy.) Doran. ea. $1.35; set $2.50.

"World of Women." Macaulay.

"The House of Demetrius Road." Doran. $1.30.

"These Lynnekers." Doran. $1.50.

"Housemates." Doran. $1.50.

"The Wonder." Doran. $1.40.

"H. G. Wells." Holt. 60 cents. (Writers of the Day Series.) Gosling's - Lond. Heineman, 1913

Beresford's first book is the life story of an architect, reminiscent of the author's own experience as an architect.

"These Lynnekers" is the story of the life of a family, "True blues," living on tradition, convention-bound. The Pleiade are very fond of taking a family, rather than an individual, for the hero of their stories.

"Housemates" details the growth of a soul; a clergyman's son goes to London, to a lodging house of sinister character, and falls in love with one of his housemates.

"The Wonder" is an infant prodigy, a study of abnormality.

Beresford is more often likened to H. G. Wells than to any other writer. It is significant, perhaps, that he was chosen to write on Wells in the Writers of the Day Series.

CANNAN, GILBERT. 1884—(Journalist and Linguist)

"Round the Corner," "Old Mole," "Young Earnest," (Trilogy.) Appleton. $1.50 each.

"Devious Ways." Duffield. $1.50.

"Peter Homunculus." Duffield. $1.50.

"Mendel." Doran. $1.50. (Story of a young Polish musician.)

"Three Sons and a Mother." Doran. $1.50. (Another story of a family.)

Essays:

"The Joy of the Theatre." Dutton. 50c. (Fellowship Books.)

"Love." Dutton. 50c. (Fellowship Books.)

"Samuel Butler: A Critical Study." London: Stecker.

"Satire." Doran. 50c. (The Art and Craft of Letters. Series.)

Translations:

"Jean Christophe" (from the French of Romain Rolland). Holt. 3 vols. $1.75 each.

"Memoirs of Heinrich Heine" (from the German, edited by Gustav Karpiles). Lane. 2 vols. $5.00 set.
"The House with the Mezzanine" (from the Russian of Anton Tchekoff). Scribner. $1.35.

It is generally agreed that Gilbert Cannan is the most scholarly of the group. He is an accomplished linguist, having translated from the French, German, and Russian. His study of Butler, the author of the "Way of All Flesh," and his essay on "Satire" show him to be an able critic.

Mr. Cannan's novels are social histories—studies of the Victorian age. Victorianism is his constant topic.

GEORGE, W. L. 1882—(Barrister and Soldier)

"A Bed of Roses." Brentano. $1.35.
"The City of Light." Little. $1.50.
"Until the Day Break." Little. $1.50.
"The Little Beloved." Little. $1.50. (Same as "The Making of an Englishman.")
"The Second Blooming." Little. $1.50.
"The Stranger's Wedding." Little. $1.50.

Essays:
"Anatole France." Holt. 60c. (Writers of the Day Series.)
"Woman and To-morrow." Appleton. $1.35. (Study of Feminism.)
"The Intelligence of Woman." Little. $1.25. (His provocative and much resented series of essays in the Atlantic Monthly.)

Earlier Sociological Writings:
"Engines of Social Progress." 1907. Macmillan. $2.00.
"France in the Twentieth Century." 1908. Lane. $1.75.
"Labor and Housing at Port Sunlight." 1909. Scribner. $1.40.

Mr. George's novels are all concerned about the status of woman, the feminist problem, the divorce question, the condition of marriage. His first book was received with violent disapproval, banned by every public library, and in consequence, is now in its forty-second thousand.

"The Second Blooming" is the story of three sisters and seems to remind everybody of May Sinclair's "Three Sisters,' and of Ernest Poole's "His Family."

Mr. George was born in France and served in the French army. He was peculiarly fitted to write on Anatole France, and his legal training and political economy studies in the Paris University qualified him to write on sociological subjects.

LAWRENCE, DAVID HERBERT. 1885—

"White Peacock." Duffield. $1.30.
"The Rainbow." Huebsch. $1.50.
"Twilight in Italy." Huebsch. $1.50.
"The Prussian Officer and Other Stories." Huebsch. $1.50.
"Amores." Huebsch. $1.25. (Poems.)
"Love Poems and Others." Kennerley.
"Sons and Lovers." Kennerley.

Drama:
"The Widowing of Mrs. Holroyd." Little. $1.00.

Mr. D. H. Lawrence has been said to make the Reticences gasp. His novel, "The Rainbow," was suppressed in England but strongly championed by Arnold Bennett. "Twilight in Italy" is a story of oversexed Italians, and "The Prussian Officer" a tale of German cruelty.

His two volumes of love poems have been said to restore to the word, "passion," its original meaning of "suffering."

His greatest book, "Sons and Lovers," is an epic of family life in a colliery district. It is an exposition of Freud's theory of repressed desires.

MACKENZIE, COMPTON. 1883—(Captain Royal Marines)

"The Passionate Elopement." Lane. $1.50.
"Carnival," "Youth's Encounter," "Sinister Street," (Trilogy.) Appleton. $1.40 each.
"Guy and Pauline."
"Plashers Mead." Harper. $1.50.

Compton Mackenzie emerges from the group of young British novelists because of the charming and exquisite quality of the life he presents. He is the most likely to resign from the Syndicate, the critics think, as he is so unlike the others. He is the novelist of Youth—of its follies, fancies, gaieties and delights. His stories are pleasant and he is "good at a plot."

Compton Mackenzie is sometimes confused with Cameron Mackenzie, the American writer, author of "Mr. and Mrs. Pierce" (Dodd), and of "The Man Who Tried to be It" (Doran).

ONIONS, OLIVER. 1883—(Artist, War Correspondent)

"The Compleat Bachelor." Stokes. $1.25.
"The Exception." Lane. $1.50.
"Gray Youth." Doran. $1.50. (Same as "The Two Kisses and a Crooked Mile.")
"The Debit Account," "In Accordance with the Evidence," "The Story of Louie." (Trilogy.) Doran. $1.25 each.
"Mushroom Town." Doran. 1.25. Story of Wales.

"Gray Youth" is the story of a very modern courtship and a very modern marriage. Mr. Onions is modern above all else. Victorian society does not interest him as it does his colleagues, Beresford and Cannan. His concern is entirely with the present.

Sex war absorbs his interest to the point of becoming his favorite theme.

The middle volume of his trilogy amounts almost to a detective story in the ingenuity of its plot.

WALPOLE, HUGH SEYMOUR. 1884—(With the Russian Red Cross 1914-16)

"The Wooden Horse." Dutton. 50c. Wayfarer's Library.
"The Wooden Horse." Doran. $1.35.
"Maradick at Forty." Doran. $1.35.
"The Gods and Mr. Perrin." Doran. $1.35. (A tragi-comedy.)
"Fortitude." Doran. $1.40. (A prologue: being the true and faithful account of the education of an adventurer.)
"The Golden Scarecrow." Doran. $1.35.
"The Prelude to Adventure: A Prologue," $1.35; "The Duchess of Wrexe," $1.40; "The Green Mirror: A Quiet Story," $1.50, a series (unfinished) called The Rising City. Doran.
"The Dark Forest." Doran. $1.35.

Essays:
"Joseph Conrad." Holt. 60c. (Writers of the Day Ser.)

Mr. Walpole is the son of the Bishop of Edinburgh. He was educated at Cambridge University and later joined the Russian Red Cross. His novel, "The Dark Forest," is based upon his experiences in Russia during 1914-16.

The atmosphere of Mr. Walpole's novels is entirely conventional and at times academic.

The first volume of his trilogy is a picture of Cambridge undergraduate life, a charming companion picture to that of Oxford undergraduate life in Compton Mackenzie's "Sinister Street."

"The Duchess of Wrexe" is a character analysis of an Englgish Dowager that has few equals in literature.

The last volume of the trilogy is a quiet story, very refreshing for these days of stress.

The above notes are the opinions of various critics gathered from American and English reviews.

An American publisher has said that nobody need be taught how to sell fiction—fiction sells itself. We hold that the selling of fiction requires the greatest amount of training and preparation. Fiction is too often sold contemptuously by clerks of the best sort. The reason is that the field is so extensive—it is impossible to inform oneself very widely in it, and the task is abandoned as unworthwhile because it is so formidable.

Every clerk knows the familiar query, "Have you read this book yourself? What is it about?" Usually the book jacket can alone supply the answer. The average customer requires the clerk to have read every book on the fiction counter. Nor is the demand so unreasonable as it seems. The clerk ought to be able to say what every book of fiction is about. How is he to do so?

At least one progressive bookstore has shown the way. Clip from the Publishers' Weekly every fiction entry as it appears in the Weekly Record, with the outline of the book's plot; supplement this, if you will, with clippings from other book reviews which give criticism and opinions of the work; mount the same on library cards, and file them alphabetically in a case kept on the fiction counter. In time you will have a record of every novel on the market, and when a customer asks "What is this book about?" the information will be at her elbow.

Ten Commandments of Salesmanship

Dr. Frank Crane gave a talk on Salesmanship thru the daily press recently which might be said to tell the whole story of effective retail salesmanship in half a thousand words. So full of suggestion is it for the book salesman that it is reprinted herewith practically in its entirety:

It is to be kept in mind that these commandments are supposed to come from the consumer, and not from the sales expert. If you want to sell me or any other buyer goods, therefore, we pray you to keep these commandments:

1. Be Agreeable. Other things being equal, I go to the store where the clerks try to please me. I buy clothing, typewriters and automobiles of the man who acts as tho he likes me. Exert yourself to make a pleasing impression on me, please. I appreciate it. Hence, dress well. Untidy clothes mean you don't care what I think of your appearance. But don't dress too well. That gives you an air of showing off. Dress just right. If you don't know how, find out. Cultivate a pleasing voice. Learn to converse entertainingly. Cut out all mannerisms. Give me the impression of a gentleman, honest, square, anxious to please, and good natured.

2. Know Your Goods. Don't let there be any question I can ask you relative to the manufacture, history, distribution, or uses of what you have to sell that you cannot answer. Put in your spare time making of yourself an encyclopedia of information about your goods.

3. Don't Argue. Go with me in your talk, not against me. Lead, don't oppose. Don't show me where I am wrong. Dodge a square issue, and show me wherein you are right.

Suggest. Don't antagonize. Argument as a rule results in irritation, not conviction.

4. Make Things Plain. Don't use any words I don't understand. You can explain the most complicated matter to a washwoman if you know your subject perfectly and practice using simple language. Don't air your technical knowledge and try to impress me. I want to be flattered, not awed.

5. Tell the Truth. Don't lie, or exaggerate, or mislead, or conceal. Let me feel that you are sincere, and mean every word you say, and that every statement you make is of par value. If you represent goods that need lying about, directly or indirectly, quit. There are plenty of articles that are straight and all right. Sell them.

6. Be Dependable. Even in small things create the impression that whatever you promise is as much to be depended upon as your signed note. If you make an appointment at 3 p. m. Tuesday, be there at 2.45, or telegraph. If I order goods of a certain grade, let them be found to be exactly of that grade when I receive them.

7. Remember Names and Faces. If you have not a natural gift for this, acquire it. Get a little book and set down every day the names of those you have met, with their characteristics. Practice this until you become expert. No man likes to be forgotten or to have you ask his name.

8. Don't Be Egotistic. Eliminate the pronoun I as much as possible from your vocabulary. Talk about me, not yourself. Don't tickle yourself, tickle me, I'm the one you want to win.

9. Think Success. Success begins in the mind. Why think fifty cents, when it is just as easy to think fifty dollars? Tell success stories, not incidents of failure and hard luck. Radiate prosperity. Feel prosperous. It's catching. Keep your chin up.

10. Be Human. The reason you are hired to sell goods is that you are a human being. Otherwise your employer would have sent a catalog. So be a human being, likable, engaging, full of human electricity. For I patronize as a rule the salesman I like.

Selling goods is the greatest business in the world. It takes all there is in a man. You need to know psychology, you need tact, intelligence, self-control, courage, persistence and inexhaustible good humor. It is not a job for a second rater. You simply have to make good or go under.

The House of Harper—Number II in the Series of Biographies of Publishing Houses

The brothers Harper in their youth went a few months each year to a district school on Long Island, working at odd jobs at other times. At last James, the oldest of the four brothers, was sixteen, and allowed to select his trade, and fired by the autobiography of Benjamin Franklin, he chose to be a printer. The second brother, John, also adopted printing as a trade; and in 1817, under the style of "J. & J. Harper," the two brothers started in business for themselves, John with special skill as compositor, James, even then known in the trade as an accomplished pressman. Soon after the other two brothers, Joseph Wesley Harper and Fletcher Harper, entered their brothers' business as "boys." The four brothers were known later, when Charles Dickens had made the phrase famous, as the "Cheeryble Brothers." All four were hard-working men. James supervised the mechanical operations; John was the financier and made the purchases; Wesley read proof and conducted the correspondence of the house; Fletcher was in charge of the composing room and gradually assumed control of the literary department.

Within eight years after their establishment they had attained the front rank among American publishers, and theirs was the largest book-manufacturing establishment in the country.

Endowed with an earnest and genuine love of knowledge, their publishing ideals from the first were high, and they set out definitely to bring good reading to this country. Their first books showed their trend: school books, encyclopedias and editions of the Bible, and such works as Milman's "History of the Jews," Chamber's "Natural History of Creation," and many other books rated as "radical" and "disturbing" in those days were brought out by the new house. When these books began to be succcessful the absence of a copyright law was keenly felt, but from the beginning the Harpers made themselves an enviable reputation abroad by the generosity of their business arrangements with foreign authors. Inasmuch, however, as the first publisher out with a book had the market, some remarkable feats of quick book manufacture are recorded. Fletcher Harper, for instance, worked three days and nights on Scott's "Peveril of the Peak," after receiving the copy from the packet which brought it across.

Altho authors were at the mercy of their American publishers for remuneration, Harper & Brothers paid Charles Dickens as much as £1250 for "Great Expectations"; to Thackeray, £480 for "The Virginians"; to Anthony Trollope, £700 for "Sir Harry Hotspur"; and George Eliot was paid as high as £1700 for "Middlemarch." Of course, the house of Harper did not stand alone in the matter of such generous treatment of English authors.

THE HARPER MAGAZINES

The serial publications of the Harpers were the great pride of the original brothers. In June, 1850, Harper's Magazine was started, with Henry J. Raymond, afterwards of New York Times fame, as managing editor, but under the personal direction of Fletcher Harper. After six months' trial, the magazine had a monthly circulation of more than 50,000 copies, and three years later 150,000 copies were printed per month.

Harper's Weekly, started in 1857, was, like the monthly, a success from the first. Harper's Bazar, a repository of fashion and instruction, was first issued by the house in 1867.

Both of the latter two have been sold within the past half dozen years, the one to the Independent and the other to the Hearst interests.

HARPER AUTHORS

The list of those who have done work for the Harper house would include almost every author of note in this country and most of the prominent writers of England. Among these not a few have been closely connected with the history of the firm: Henry Mills Alden, editor of Harper's Magazine; William Black, whose "Madcap Violet" appeared as a serial in the Magazine; Wilkie Collins, whose books and serials, as well as short stories, were published by the house; S. S. Conant, editor of Harper's Weekly; Dickens, whose works were published by the Harpers, and who contributed to the Harper periodicals; William Dean Howells, first a reader for the house, later editor of the "Editor's Study" of the Magazine, and a frequent contributor; William H. Prescott, the historian; Charles Reade, who wrote for the Magazine; William M. Thackeray, whose "Henry Esmond" and other works were published by the house; Ruskin George Eliot, and Mark Twain, an old contributor, who eventually gave the firm exclusive publication of his books.

SINCE 1900

With such contemporaries as Mark Twain, Bangs, Kipling, Weyman, Henry James, Hardy, Janvier and Margaret Deland we come to the recent period of Harper Brothers, which saw the end of the original Harper régime and the financial reorganization of the house in 1900. Following the four original Harpers of the first generation, there had been five Harpers of the second generation in the firm and eleven of the third. In 1900 came the reorganization of the business which marked the passage of the presidency to other than a Harper. Of Col. Harvey, the new head, it has been said that "the present house of Harper's is a monument to his uncommon gifts of reorganization and re-establishment." It was Col. Harvey who collected Mark Twain's scattered and in many cases out of print works into the collected edition which is today one of the most notable features of a notable list. In 1915 Col. Harvey was succeeded by C. T. Brainard. Henry Hoyns, a director in the company and in charge of sales, is widely and most favorably known in the retail trade.

There are few lists in the "Trade List Annual" that are better balanced in all departments and more worthy of study by the book-clerk than that of America's oldest publishers, the House of Harper.

BARNES-WILCOX CO. NOW J. W. WILCOX & FOLLETT CO.

WITH January 15 the trade name of C. M. Barnes-Wilcox Co., the well-known Chicago educational publishers and jobbers, was changed to J. W. Wilcox & Follett Co. The house dates its beginning back to 1872 when it was founded by C. M. Barnes. The C. M. Barnes Co. was organized in 1894 and became C. M. Barnes-Wilcox Co. in 1907. J. W. Wilcox, president of the company, has for the past twenty-one years been secretary and treasurer, in charge of the office, and for the past twelve years principal owner. C. W. Follett has been connected with the company for over fifteen years, and has been vice-president since 1912. He will continue as vice-president, buyer and sales manager.

J. W. Wilcox & Follett Co. are Chicago distributors for Everyman's Library; Practical Drawing Co.; Whitcomb & Barrows; Bobbs-Merrill Co.; Webb Publishing Co.; J. B. Lippincott Co.; Schwartz, Kirwin & Fauss; Southern Publishing Co.; Frank D. Beattys Co.; A. L. Dykes ("Dykes Auto Encyclopedia") and Wm. H. Sadlier.

A RATING BOOK OF BOOKSELLERS

THE Graphic Arts Board of Trade of New York, a recently formed service, similar to "Dun" and "Bradstreet," devoted to the book, printing and stationery fields, has prepared "for the guidance of members who sell the book trade in the United States" a "Rating Book" covering all concerns selling books thruout the United States. The compact little 373 page volume is arranged for rapid reference by states, giving under each state the population, cities in alphabetical order with their respective populations, the largest bank and the various bookselling concerns. Each of the latter has key numbers denoting the estimated capital, trade standing and reputation for payments of the business in question. Also key numbers indicate whether books constitute the entire business, or are only a side issue.

Jenkins, made a brief address. Mr. Charles P. Schoffner of the editorial staff of the Farm Journal gave an illustrated talk on "The Necessity of Birds in War Time."

He was a veteran of the Civil War, during which he had been a United States Medical Inspector, and was once President of the New York Academy of Medicine. He was the author of "Life, Death, and Immortality," and "Brains and Personality."

MAY ALDEN WARD, author, women's club leader and lecturer, of Cambridge, Mass., was instantly killed on January 14, when the limousine in which she was riding collided with a trolley car. Mrs. Ward was sixty-five years old. She was the author of the following books: "Life of Dante," 1887; "Petrarch, a Sketch of His Life and Works," 1891; "Old Colony Days," 1896; "Prophets of the Nineteenth Century," 1900.

CHARLES ELLIOTT FITCH, eighty-three years old, editor of the Syracuse Standard, from 1866 to 1873, later editor of the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, for seventeen years connected with the State Educational Department, died on January 16, at his home in Skaneateles, N. Y. He wrote "History of Common School Education in New York from 1633 to 1904" and edited "Recollections of Abraham Lansing"; "Political New York from Cleveland to Hughes"; "New York—Political and Governmental"; "Encyclopedia of Biography of New York."

PERSONAL NOTES

JOHN MASEFIELD is now in this country for a lecture tour after some months spent at the front.

W. J. GAGE, head of the Canadian publishing house of W. J. Gage & Co., was among those knighted on New Year's Day.

IN A RECENT AIR RAID on London a shell from a anti-aircraft gun struck Mr. John Lane's private house. It fell through the roof of the Library, and some books and pictures suffered injury.

MISS VIRGINIA WATSON, formerly in charge of the book publicity department of Harper & Brothers, became one of the editors of Harper's on February 1st. Miss Le Gallienne, daughter of the author, takes over Miss Watson's publicity duties.

HOWARD W. COOK, formerly with the New York Evening World and the United Press Association, and more recently with the publicity department of Doubleday, Page & Co., has severed his connection with the last named firm to take charge of the editorial department of Moffat, Yard & Co.

RICHARD H. TOEPLITZ, in charge of the book and stationery departments of Forbes & Wallace, Springfield, Mass., has resigned owing to the sudden death of his father, necessitating his removal from Springfield. The departments will be conducted for the present by Charles Beaman.

THE RECENT NEWS of an "accidental explosion" in France, which wounded General Leonard Wood in the arm and Lieutenant-Colonel C. E. Kilbourne in the eye, will be of especial interest to readers of the latter's books for young people. Lieutenant-Colonel Kilbourne is the author of the Army Boy Series, in which he has described many of the interesting incidents that have come under his notice in China, the Philippines, Mexico, and Alaska; and also of the Baby Animal Stories, which were first told to his own little girl, and afterwards written out for publication.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES

A RECENT Bulletin of the Brooklyn Museum devoted several pages to a random discussion of the history and purpose of book-plates.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY is issuing from his new office Blanche Shoemaker Wagstaff's

"Book of Love," to be followed in a few days by "The Air-Line to Liberty, a Prospectus for all Nations," by Gerald Stanley Lee.

THE MACMILLAN Co. will introduce this month a new novelist, Daniel Chase, whose "Flood Tide" is the story of a dreamer driven by circumstances into a business career and of the ultimate happiness he achieves.

AN EXHIBITION of pictures by the late F. Hopkinson Smith is being held at the Ralston Art Galleries in New York City. Some of the artist's best water colors and a few character drawings are included in the exhibition.

SPEED, GREED, ambition, distrust, love and hate are the elements that go into "The Biography of a Million Dollars," a business romance by George Kibbe Turner, author of "The Last Christian," to be published in February by Little, Brown & Co.

ANOTHER Empey-Peat type of war book will issue February 6th from the house of McClurg: "Holding the Line" by Sergeant Harold Baldwin. The constantly increasing orders for the book presage a popularity echoing that of the book by the other sergeant.

THE J. J. LITTLE & IVES Co. have sent out an attractive greeting in honor of their fiftieth anniversary. Printed on a fine grade of paper the little leaflet is an example of modern printing excellence and typographical charm.

A CONTINUOUS and detailed narrative of the war is presented in "Nelson's History of the War" by John Buchan, issued in monthly volumes. The author is a member of the British Publicity Bureau and an eye-witness of many of the events which he narrates. The latest volumes cover the Battle of the Somme, the Roumanian Campaign, and the American declaration of war.

ONCE MORE the famous colored cooks of the South score now that Mr. Hoover has told us to eat corn, for who knows better how to prepare corn breads than these same old mammies? In "The Blue Grass Cook Book" (Scribner), Minnie C. Fox has collected many Southern recipes, particularly those that will help the housewife in wartime.

ASHTON-KIRK who has figured in previous titles as "investigator," "secret agent," and "special detective" now appears as "Ashton-Kirk Criminologist," in John T. McIntyre's latest detective yarn to be published by the Penn Publishing Co., February 25. It is he who lifts the cloud from a beautiful woman seemingly implicated in a mysterious suburban murder.

THIS TIME it is another detective story that the versatile Carolyn Wells has decided to give us. "Vicky Van," just published by the J. B. Lippincott Co., is another triumph for Fleming Stone whose cases we have followed in "The Curved Blades" and "The Mark of Cain." The master detective in this story has the able assistance of the irrepressible office boy, Fibsy.

TACTICS AND DUTIES FOR TRENCH FIGHTING," a book of practical importance for those preparing for service on the other side, will be published by the Putnams early this month. It has been prepared by Georges Bertrand, Capitaine, Chasseurs Alpins, and Oscar N. Solbert, Major, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., and gives principles and examples of modern warfare.

THE MOVEMENT for reforms in spelling is by no means new in Russia as the first Provisional Government of Prince Lvov passed a decree to simplify orthography with the beginning of the academic year 1917-'18 in all schools of the new republic. The reform of the Russian spelling, which has always been substantially phonetic, has been advocated in Russia by educators and philologists for the past two generations. This accounts for its apparently speedy adoption by the revolutionary government.

CONSPICUOUS AMONG the detective stories which figure so prominently in the new fictions is "The Mystery of the Downs" by John R. Watson and Arthur J. Rees, two ex-detectives of Scotland Yard , authors of "The Hampstead Mystery." The story is laid in rural England, but the motive for the crime goes back across the waters to the front. The authors are two of those clever fellows who succeed in keeping the reader pretty much in the dark until they get ready to turn on the light. The novel has just been published by the John Lane Co.

LIKE MRS. ATHERTON'S "The White Morning," "The House of Conrad," by Elias Tobenkin, author of "Witte Arrives," deals with the problem of Germany and the Germans. While Mrs. Atherton's book is staged in Germany and during the present war, Mr. Tobenkin's novel, to be published also by the Frederick A. Stokes Co., does not touch the war. It shows, however, some distinct phases of the German-American problem, among them what America has done to the German brand of socialism.

GEORGE SULLY & Co., formerly Sully & Kleinteich, have purchased the plates and stock of the National Military Publishing Co. and will publish immediately a list of military books including: "Infantry Drill Regulations, United States Army, 1911," with "text corrections to August 18, 1917, changes Nos. 1 to 20 with new appendix D," a special edition with a vocabulary in French, Italian, and Russian, and foreign money equivalents; and "The New Manual of Physical Training and Organization of Bayonet Training," containing the detailed instructions and regulations in force in the new allied armies as developed by the British and French in the present war.

A NEW LIBERTY EDITION of Irving Bachelor's "The Lights in the Clearing," designed particularly as a gift for soldiers in camp, was put out recently by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. One feature is an effective red, white and blue band around the jacket and another is the following facsimile foreword from the author pasted on a separate flap in the front:

"My dear young friend: Be careful. It is loaded and whatever happens don't blame me. If you wish, and have a chance, you can use it as a hand grenade on the Germans. There are some who think that if you have the courage to read the book it may give you cheerful hours and a better understanding of the ideals you are to defend if need be. I am not so daring but anyhow it will take to you the grateful and hearty good wishes of myself and the sender.

IRVING BACHELLER, Author.

THE DEPARTMENTS OF HARPER & BROTHERS particularly concerned in the publication, selling and shipping of trade books came together for a dinner at the Yale Club, New York, on January 21. The outstanding feature, so far as general interest to the book trade goes, was the information brought in by the sales force, based on personal reports from various sections of the country, that business conditions were improving steadily. In some instances this January was reported to be as good as January, 1917. As a feature of the dinner Lieutenant E. M. Roberts, R.F.C., whose book will be brought out shortly by Harper, told his story to the men who are to sell his book—the story of an American who flew for twenty-two months on the Western front.

ON MONDAY of this week the daily papers of New York City increased their prices to 2c. (the Evening Post decreased its price at the same time to 2c.) and the local newsdealers are boycotting the papers on account of alleged insufficient "trade discounts." Under the new scale dealers buy their papers at $1.40 a hundred, making 6/10 of a cent profit on each paper instead of the old 4/10 of a cent. Despite this 50 per cent increase the dealers are standing out for a $1.20 rate. The publishers countered on January 31 by incorporating at Albany a new distributing company, The United Newspaper Delivery Co. with incorporators and directors as follows: Don C. Seitz, World; Louis Wiley, Times; Frank B. Flaherty, Herald; Bradford Merrill, American; Ervin Wardman, Sun; George Vernon Rogers, Tribune; George H. Larke, Evening Mail; Arthur B. Chivers, Globe; Victor Ridder, Staats-Zeitung, and Herbert F. Gunnison, Brooklyn Eagle.

THE SUNWISE TURN, 2 East 31st St., New York, is to be the gathering place for two series of conferences, one on modern poetry to be conducted by Padraic Colum and the other on libertarian education. The first began January 2 and is to consist of six lectures at $5 or $1 per single lecture. The subjects scheduled include: for Tuesday, January 22, "The Successors of Tennyson," including Arthur Symons, Ernest Dowson, Oscar Wilde, and the poetry of Robert Bridges and Thomas Hardy; January 29th, "Two Contrasting Poets," discussing the poetry of the Catholic, Francis Thompson, and the materialist, John Davidson; February 5th, Yeats, George Russell (A. E.), and Synge; February 12th, "The Rise of Nationalism Amongst the Younger English Poets"; February 19th, "Some American Poets," including Vachel Lindsay, Robert Frost, Edwin A. Robinson and the imagists; February 26th, "An Interpretation of the Spirit of Irish Poetry." The lectures on libertarian education will be given by various speakers on Fridays thruout February and March and are free.

AS A MEMORIAL of its 100th birthday Harper & Brothers have issued "The Harper Centennial 1817-1917," an excellent piece of bookmaking printed on deckle-edged paper with a title page reproduced from the title page of the first book to bear the Harper imprint. Twelve hundred and fifty copies only have been printed for private distribution. A brief historical foreword is followed by congratulatory letters from various notable men, authors, and publishers, all wishing success and "another hundred years" to the house of Harper. In further commemoration their centennial, Harper and Brothers have brought out an edition, limited to 750 copies, of "Seneca's Morals," the book which in August, 1817, marked their advent in publishing. J. & J. Harper, printers and compositors, then issued an edition of 2000 copies for the elder Duyckinck, an honored name in the annals of the American book trade. This edition is noteworthy for its plain, compact page, beautiful title-page, and thoroly good press-work. At a recent sale in Philadelphia a copy sold for $400.00. The new edition will contain facsimile reproductions of fourteen of the pages of the first edition.

The firm of Brockmann & Co., retailers of books, stationery, office supplies, etc., now located at 224 South Tryon St., will remove February 1 to the Scott Building, 210 South Tryon St. The new location is about twice the size of the present store and will afford an opportunity for carrying in display a much larger stock. Here she loved for the first time—a young German who did not offer marriage on account of her supposed lower standing. On Gisela's return to Germany she became a deep thinker and a writer of note. At the outbreak of the war she worked for her country as a Red Cross nurse. Then came her disillusionment in Germany. Stifling her passion for her lover, who had reappeared, she killed him and became the leader of the German women in a revolt which led to the abdication of the Emperor.

A famous detective is called in and various clues are followed up. The girl has begged Marsland to keep her presence at the farmhouse a secret and for a time he does so. Under subject entries asterisks () designate books previously entered in the Weekly Record, in most cases with descriptive annotation.

LEADERSHIP
AND MILITARY TRAINING

By LIEUTENANT COLONEL LINCOLN C. ANDREWS, U.S.A.,
Commandant, Officers' Training Camp, Camp Dix, N. J.

Leadership is the indispensable Quality to Advancement

The army offers promotions by the hundred thousands.
From every million Infantrymen drafted there will be selected

125,000 Corporals! 60,000 Sergeants! 8,000 Lieutenants! 4,000 Captains!

Every Fifth Man a Leader

Of every four Corporals one must be selected and appointed a Sergeant. Of these non-commissioned officers hundreds will be selected in each Cantonment trained as officers, and appointed Lieutenants. The pick of these will later be selected and appointed Captains.

The one determining consideration in the selections will be: Has He the Best Qualifications for Leadership?

HERE IS THE ONLY AMERICAN BOOK
THAT EXPLAINS THESE QUALIFICATIONS

Tells how to be a good leader and how to avoid being a poor one. It explains the Spirit of the Service, not the technique. Explains its meanings, how to conduct a good drill, how to avoid spoiling it. Explains the spirit and the method of training, so it may result in Fitness to meet the enemy and defeat him.

The REILLY & BRITTON CO. PUBLISHERS CHICAGO

DURING 1917 The New York Tribune carried the second largest amount of book advertising among all New York newspapers. This represented a gain of more than eleven per cent over 1916.

Publishers using The Tribune appreciate to the utmost the full confidence its readers place in its advertising columns. Such publishers know the value of responsive circulation as against just quantity distribution.

That the morning paper is your field is proved by the fact that in 1917 New York morning papers carried nearly three times as much publishers' advertising as the evening papers. While the latter newspapers were losing some twenty thousand lines, the former made a gain of over sixty-six thousand.

12mo, Cloth, $1.00 net

A truly remarkable human document written by the father of three boys who have gone "over there" to fight for Democracy. Every father and mother should read this "confession" in which thousands will see themselves and find comfort and cheer.

THE BUSINESS OF WAR

By Isaac F. Marcosson, author of "The Rebirth of Russia," etc.

16 Illustrations, 12mo, Cloth, $1.50 net

This is the first war-book to tell the facts that every man wants to know. These facts include the feeding, transporting and supplying of armies, the production and distribution of shells—the whole amazing procedure that keeps the engines of war going. It is the story of the army behind the army, no less heroic than the fighting host it feeds.

TO BE PUBLISHED IN MARCH

THE GLORY OF THE TRENCHES

By Coningsby Dawson, author of "Carry On," etc.

Frontispiece Portrait, 12mo, Cloth, $1.00 net

There is nothing commonplace in this newest war experience of the author of "Carry On"—nothing like the usual run of war stuff. He propounds a new and interesting theory of the inspiration which drives the fighting men on. "Their religion is the religion of heroism," he says, "which they have learned in the glory of the trenches." What that glory is, how it lays hold of every true man, what it really means to be at the front in the greatest war of all the ages is here most vividly told.

LOVE INTRIGUES OF THE KAISER'S SONS

Secrets in the Lives of the German Princes

Chronicled by William Le Queux... With Numerous Portraits, 8vo, Cloth, $3.00 net

In this book the author lifts the veil from the private lives of the Kaiser's sons, showing how, despite the iron hand of Prussian discipline, they were frequently involved in affairs of the heart with girls in all classes of society.

MY EMPRESS: Twenty-three Years of Intimate Life with the Empress of All the Russias. From Her Marriage to the Day of Her Exile.

By Madame Marfa Mouchanow, First Maid in Waiting to Her Former Majesty, the Czarina Alexandra of Russia.

With Numerous Illustrations, 8vo, Cloth, $2.50 net

Never has "back-stairs gossip" in a royal palace been so delightfully and intimately told as in this remarkable narrative, in which we see a marvelous picture of the most powerful Empress in the world, and yet the most lonely and isolated woman in all the Russias.

RASPUTIN AND THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION

By Princess Catherine Radziwill (Count Vassili), author of "Behind the Veil at the Russian Court." With Numerous Illustrations, 8vo, Cloth, $3.00 net

The fall of the House of Romanoffs was the most dramatic event in European history since Louis XVI was guillotined. Behind the veil stood that sinister personage—Gregory Rasputin, the "Black Monk of Russia." He was the last representative of the old régime, and the details of his extraordinary career are here given with accuracy to the American public for the first time.

He Made the World Blush for Shame

He was feared and worshipped, hated and loved. Alone he defied the world He died as he had lived—in tragedy. But he left a heritage of literature that will live forever. No one can afford to miss the lesson it teaches

The Writings of Brann, the Iconoclast, Published in Two Volumes

WHAT strange power did Brann exercise over men? What was his mysterious influence that he could craze some people with hatred and hypnotize others with love? Why did one man give his own life that he might take the life of Brann? Why at his death did thousands upon thousands journey to his grave to pay him tribute? Was he master of the passions of men that he could inspire both hatred and love?

Who was Brann?

"Child of the Devil!" one man called him. "Journalism's most Tragic Figure," Elbert Hubbard said of him. Brann was an iconoclast. He tore down the conventions of life—stripped off the cloak of hypocrisy and laid bare the blinding nakedness of TRUTH! Nothing could stop the fury of his attack. When he wrote or spoke, the artificial barriers of society tottered, the sham draperies of Virtue fell, and the false pretenses of love and marriage stood exposed in their shame. Sins of the World—Mysteries of Heaven and Hell—he dared to assail all with unflinching independence.

Brann, the Iconoclast

They tried to stop him—the press, society, political and financial powers reached out to pull him down. But nothing on earth could daunt him. He said: "I'd rather my babes were born in a canebrake and reared on bark and wild berries, with the blood of independence burning in their veins, than spawned in a palace and brought up bootlicks and policy-players."

He was stopped finally. The bullet of an enemy found its mark and to the supreme power of death Brann yielded the life that no mortal man could control.

Elbert Hubbard said:

"He saw through the hollow mockeries of society and religion. He was an Iconoclast—an Image Breaker. He unloosed his tongue and pen in denunciation of all and everything that appeared to stand between the sunlight and his ideals. He was the Wizard of Words—the Master of our Language. He took the English language by the tail and snapped its head off for his own delectation and the joy of the onlooker."

And his weapon was—WORDS.

Mere words—combinations of letters! But under his magic they burned like acid, seared like flames and cut like a whip. He attacked every fraud and fake in Christendom. With utter frankness he wrote down things as he saw them.

The most remarkable of Brann's writings have been collected and published in two volumes by his friends and are now offered to the public at $2.00 per volume. Over 100,000 volumes have already been sold.
